FORGETFULNESS.

Who can forget a loving word, Though said in language plain? It sinks within the immost heart, And is not went in vain. Who can forget a loving glance, A smile for us alone? Ah! these are what we love to got, And prize them to our own-Who can forget a parting kine, The last fond lingering look!

Yet there are some who can forget, Whose memories never stray; With whom the present is enough-The past has died away. Tis thus with some, yet I am glad Of such I know but few, And may it noter be said, dear friend, Of either I or you.

The Income Tax.

The Income Tax law has gone into the Courts, at last, on a test of its constitutionality. The case arises in the United States Circuit Court in this city, a bill in equity having been filed by a citizen whose property was levied upon for the amount of tax alleged to be due from him to the United States on account of income. The averment in the bills is that the law conflicts with that provision of the Constitution which declares that " no capitation or other direct tax shall be laid, unless in proportion to the census or enumeration hereinbefore directed to be taken." The argument is set down for the first Monday in June. The case will be watched with a great deal of interest. There is a general belief that the income tax is unconstitutional, and its prying, spying, meddling character renders it peculiarly offensive to the American people Two thousand Israelites in St. Louis During the war it was submitted to with a with any tax regarded as necessary for the prosecution of the war and the support of The crop prospects in Florida are very the Government. But the rebellion has now been ended more than three years and if the expenditures of the Government are kept up on a war scale and the debt and taxation of the country increased, it is owing to the blunders, dishonesty, corruption and incapacity of the men who are governing willing to be burdened, and they will rejoice if a tax so odious, un-American and now so unnecessary as that upon incomes shall be swept away by a judical decision,-Philadelphia Shipping List.
